Counseling Center
University of Miami
Coral Gables, Florida

Accredited by the American Psychological Association
COVID-19 and Internship Training

The following information is being provided in the event that the pandemic continues into the 2021-22 internship year. The 2019-20 intern cohort smoothly transitioned to telehealth and successfully completed the internship on time. While COVID-19 restrictions are in effect, the University of Miami Counseling Center will essentially be conducting all professional and training activities remotely. Individual psychotherapy, group therapy, assessment and outreach are conducted remotely via Zoom. Training activities including supervision, seminars, case conferences and intern supervision of practicum students similarly are all conducted via Zoom as well. Assessments are limited to instruments which can be administered online or through Zoom. Due to social distancing rules the Annual Distinguished Speaker Meeting will not take place and funds will not be available for attending conferences in person. Orientation and Graduation will be conducted via Zoom. Interns will be working remotely. When in the Counseling Center, social distancing rules are in effect and each intern has an office assigned exclusively to them.
The University of Miami

The University of Miami, a privately supported, non-sectarian institution, was established in 1926. The main campus of the University of Miami is located in suburban Coral Gables and the School of Medicine is situated in mid-town Miami’s medical center complex. The University enrolls 11,090 degree-seeking undergraduate students and 6,504 graduate students in approximately 132 undergraduate and 216 graduate/professional areas of study. The University of Miami’s students represent 50 states and over 121 nations. Approximately, 37% of the undergraduate students live on campus and 77% are from outside the Greater Miami area. Among the undergraduate student body, 49% declared themselves to be members of a minority group and 15% were classified as international students. The University employs 2,697 full-time teaching faculty members. U.S. News & World Report’s 2020 “America’s Best Colleges” rankings placed UM at number 57 in the National University Survey. As one of the most comprehensive private research universities in the Southeast, the University ranked 64nd of all universities in expenditures for federal support for research and development programs. More information about the University of Miami can be obtained from our website: http://www.miami.edu.

The University of Miami Counseling Center

The Counseling Center is the sole provider of psychological services to the University of Miami student body. Individual and group psychotherapy, which are provided at no cost, are the primary modes of intervention available for personal and developmental problems. However, the Counseling Center also offers a full array of clinical services including psychiatric consultation, diagnostic testing and career counseling. Clients seek treatment at the Counseling Center for a broad spectrum of psychopathology as well as for the typical adjustment issues that college students experience. The treatment approach at the Counseling Center follows a brief therapy model. In addition to these clinical activities, the Counseling Center offers consultation services and outreach programming for the entire University community. The Counseling Center is housed within the Division of Student Affairs which enhances the ability of the staff to interface closely with other areas of the University in providing psychological services in a timely and effective fashion. The Counseling Center has a diverse, multi-disciplinary staff which includes highly experienced licensed clinical psychologists with a variety of specialty interests. The Counseling Center has demonstrated a long standing commitment to the clinical training of graduate students by being a key practicum placement for doctoral students from the Clinical Psychology Training Program and the Counseling Psychology Program which are both accredited by the American Psychological Association.
The Dr. Jess Spirer Doctoral Internship Program

The Dr. Jess Spirer Doctoral Internship Program began in 1993, and is supported by a generous bequest from Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Flipse. Additional funding has been provided by the University of Miami. This program honors the outstanding professional contributions of Jess Spirer, the founder and first Director of the University of Miami Counseling Center. He served in that capacity for thirty-three years. In addition, he was a Professor of both Psychology and Sociology at the University. His professional training included a Ph.D. in Clinical Psychology from the University of Pittsburgh and an LL.B. from Duquesne University. Dr. Spirer was a member of the first group of psychologists accepted for Diplomate status by the American Board of Professional Psychology. After retiring from the University in 1978, he engaged in private practice in Coral Gables, Florida. Dr. Spirer died on June 21, 1993. He will be remembered at the Counseling Center as one who stood for excellence in the clinical training of graduate students as well as for the highest level of professionalism in the delivery of counseling and clinical services to students at the University.

Fred C. Flipse died on June 1, 1997 at the age of 85 and Helen Donn Flipse passed away on October 2, 2006 at the age of 89. Their generosity and thoughtfulness provided the inspiration for the initiation and development of the internship program. They are remembered as wise, caring, patient and humble individuals whose involvement has closely touched the lives of our staff, interns, and the many students who have benefited from the activities of the internship program.

Internship Training Model, Aim and Competencies

The Dr. Jess Spirer Doctoral Internship Program utilizes a General Practitioner Training Model in providing a closely supervised, sequenced, high quality training experience in intervention, assessment, and consultation for interns. It is our aim that interns who successfully complete the program will have developed the fundamental skills and knowledge to launch professional careers as health service psychologists in a wide array of clinical settings, not limited to a university counseling center. Interns gain experience in the areas of intervention, assessment and outreach consultation within the context of working with individuals from diverse cultural backgrounds and lifestyles. This is accomplished by a commitment of the Counseling Center to excellence in supervision through a broad range of training activities. Efforts are made with interns to individualize their training experience in view of their specialty areas and past training. Interns are encouraged in their development as practitioners to value the role of science as the basis for their clinical work.

The Counseling Center is aware that professional growth and personal development are intertwined, and consequently is supportive of opportunities for the intern's own personal growth. In adherence to the profession wide competencies for doctoral interns in health service psychology established by the American Psychological Association, our internship program facilitates achievement of competencies in the following domains: intervention, assessment, individual and cultural diversity, supervision, consultation and interprofessional / interdisciplinary skills, ethical and legal standards, professional values and attitudes, communication and interpersonal skills, and research.
Professional Activities

Following an orientation to the Counseling Center and the University, the interns' initial level of clinical development is determined through discussions between the staff and the interns. An effort is made to individualize the interns' professional assignments and supervisory sessions based upon their needs and stated interests. Interns meet on a regular basis with the training director to process any concerns or issues that pertain to their internship experiences.

1. Individual Psychotherapy -- The largest portion of the interns' time involves working in therapy on a one-to-one basis with students in both short and long term models. The Counseling Center attempts to be flexible in providing the most appropriate treatment alternatives available, and thus sessions also involving couples are encouraged.

2. Group Psychotherapy -- The Counseling Center offers a number of counseling groups to University of Miami students each semester. The groups tend to be topic oriented such as mindfulness meditation, social anxiety, understanding self and others (process), stress reduction and GLBTQ. Interns participate in these groups as co-therapists for the first semester, and depending upon their experience, they may also conduct groups on their own.

3. Diagnostic Interviews -- Interns conduct intake sessions on a regular basis through which they can develop skills in clarifying presenting problems and considering treatment alternatives.

4. Psychological Assessment -- The interns are also given opportunities to administer and interpret test battery assignments for the purpose of making refined judgments in diagnosis and aiding in treatment planning. The nature and extent of the testing assignments are determined in part by the particular intern's past training and experience with specific assessment instruments. The minimum expectation is that an intern will complete two full-battery and two partial-battery assessment assignments.

5. Career Counseling and Testing -- The use of psychological tests for helping to clarify students' decisions in regard to choosing academic majors and careers is an important function of the Counseling Center. Interns are encouraged to interact with the Career Planning and Placement Office when helping students in this area.

6. Triage Interviews – Interns conduct brief assessment with students, some of whom might be in an emotional crisis, to determine the student’s need for treatment and to provide a plan for dealing with their concern. Interns are typically assigned up to three hours of triage coverage per week.

7. Crisis Intervention -- The Counseling Center staff is available on a 24-hour basis by means of a cell phone for psychological crises that may occur after hours. Interns can be included in the handling of these emergencies, providing them first hand experience in assessing such important clinical issues as suicidal potential and need for hospitalization. For two weeks during the Spring Semester it is expected that interns will accompany the on-call psychologist when paged for campus emergencies. In addition, during the summer, interns are assigned the emergency cell phone for several weeks. Also, it’s not unusual for interns to handle clients in crisis during triage sessions or in association with their ongoing case load.

8. Campus Consultation/Outreach Programming -- Interns are often called upon to provide talks and workshops to the University community on numerous relevant topics such as stress management, date rape, and eating issues. The residence halls at the University of Miami function within an innovative Residential College system providing a useful context for developing outreach programs. In addition, there are opportunities for consultation involving the inter-collegiate athletic programs and various departments in the Division of Student Affairs. Interns have been involved in ongoing consultation programs at the Student Health Center, the Athletic Department, Multi-Cultural Student Affairs, the Career Counseling and Placement Center, the Wellness Center, the Panhellenic Association, the University Chaplains' Association and a peer-counseling program at the Law School. Also each intern works with a professional staff member and helps coordinate one of the ongoing Counseling Center outreach programs or areas of outreach emphasis: The Sexual Assault Resource Team (SART), eating disorders programming, suicide prevention programming and the Counseling Outreach and Peer Education Program (COPE), a peer driven outreach program. Another outreach feature is the media psychology aspect of the internship in which interns have the opportunity to be interviewed on psychoeducational topics for the campus television and radio stations as well as the student newspaper. Interns are expected to participate in a minimum of five outreach programs, coordinate at least one major comprehensive outreach event, and create a self-help leaflet or video.

9. Conducting Supervision -- The Counseling Center is a practicum site for the APA accredited University of Miami Clinical and Counseling Psychology Doctoral Programs. Interns are expected to supervise a practicum student on at least one psychotherapy case over two semesters.

10. Research -- The Counseling Center recognizes the importance of research in the development of the professional psychologist, and the interns are given time and encouragement to pursue their research interests. This might include analysis and writing for doctoral dissertations. The actual time available for research can vary from a minimum of one hour during peak periods of clinical demand, to considerably more time during winter break and the summer when the clinical demands are lessened. Special arrangements were made for an intern who expressed an interest in women’s health issues, to participate in a research project at the University of Miami School of Medicine involving behavioral intervention for women with AIDS. Furthermore, the program has instituted a monthly research discussion group which meets during the spring semester. Furthermore, a psychologist on the staff serves as a research coordinator and is available for consultation with interns related to dissertation research.
Supervision and Training

1. Individual Supervision -- Each intern is assigned a primary supervisor, taking into account the intern’s preference, who provides two hours of individual supervision each week. In order to permit the intern to experience a broad range of theoretical approaches, an effort is made to assign a different primary supervisor for the fall, spring and summer semesters of the internship year. Furthermore, interns typically are given at least one additional hour of individual supervision each week from other psychologists on the staff. This secondary supervision includes supervision of the interns’ supervision of practicum students and work with therapy clients where a psychologist has a special expertise. Interns are consequently given the opportunity to be supervised by a variety of psychologists on the staff. Video recording is an important aspect of supervision at the Counseling Center.

2. Clinical Training Seminar -- This weekly one-hour meeting is conducted by a psychologist at the Counseling Center for the interns and practicum students. While the format of the seminar varies, it usually entails discussion of ongoing cases and related clinical issues. Staff members also rotate as co-leaders of this seminar to augment diversity related perspectives.

3. Case Conference -- The interns along with the entire staff meet two times a week for one hour to discuss treatment plans and diagnostic issues involving our clients. One of the Counseling Center’s consulting psychiatrists attends this meeting in order to provide input on medication and medical issues. Interns are expected to present cases on a regular basis.

4. Assessment Seminar -- A Counseling Center psychologist typically meets with the interns on a weekly basis for one hour to present, discuss and interpret the data from their assessment assignments. This meeting is supplemented by didactic presentations on assessment instruments and assessment consultation sessions with staff and interns.

5. Group Supervision Seminar -- Interns meet together on a bi-weekly basis with a Counseling Center psychologist for supervisory discussions of the groups they lead / co-lead as well as for group therapy related didactic sessions.

6. Clinical and Professional Topics Seminar -- This is a weekly one-hour didactic seminar in which Counseling Center psychologists, Affiliate Training Staff, and professionals in the community discuss specific professional and clinical issues. At the beginning of the internship year, the meeting is typically conducted by the staff of the Counseling Center and involves providing basic knowledge concerning areas such as conducting intake interviews, ethics, campus and community resources, crisis management, psychopharmacology, eating disorders, career assessment, supervision, self care and implementation of outreach/consultation. In addition to these basic sessions, examples of topics included in recent years were: The IMAGO Approach to Couple Counseling; Integrated Care and Telehealth; Ethical Dilemmas in the Use of Social Media; Sport Psychology and Psychological Performance Enhancement; Strategies for Finding Post-Doctoral Position and Employment in Psychology; and Preparing for the Licensing Exam in Psychology. An expanded training module involving multicultural issues is also featured in this seminar. Recent topics that highlighted multi-cultural issues included:
Cultural Factors and Issues in the Treatment of Substance Abuse: Latino Mental Health, It’s in the (Chanel) Bag: Fashion as a Barometer of Change; Counseling Individuals and Families - Gender and Orientation Issues; and The How and Why of Evidenced Based, Manualized and Culturally Informed Treatment. Interns are active in selecting topics and present at one meeting as well. This meeting is conducted in the Counseling Center conference room and the informal atmosphere encourages an open exchange of ideas.

7. Psychotherapy Process Seminar -- A member of the Affiliate Training Staff meets with the interns for one hour on a bi-weekly basis to examine psychotherapy issues involving their clients in an in-depth and interactive fashion during the Fall and Spring Semesters, with an emphasis on a multicultural perspective.

8. Supervision of Supervision Seminar -- In addition to interns receiving individual supervision for their supervision of practicum students, an Affiliate Staff member meets with the interns for an hour each week to discuss their experiences as supervisors in a group format which includes the use of video tape recordings.

9. Research Discussion Group -- This one-hour monthly meeting, conducted by a Counseling Center psychologist, is offered to discuss matters related to research in psychology during the spring semester. This may involve review of ongoing intern dissertations or research articles related to relevant mental health topics.

10. Racial and Cultural Dialogues Seminar -- Interns participate in an informal bi-weekly meeting during the Fall and Spring Semesters facilitated by a staff psychologist where they will have an opportunity to engage in active self-exploration of their various sociocultural identities, cultural biases and cultural worldview including how they may impact their clinical and professional work.

11. Non-Verbal Processing Seminar – During the Summer Semester, an art therapist leads a bi-weekly seminar which is primarily experiential with didactic features, designed to increase awareness, knowledge and implementation of non-verbal processing in therapeutic work.

12. Working with Latino Populations in Therapy Seminar – This Summer Semester seminar focuses on enhancing clinicians’ knowledge of Latino populations and exploring how Latino core values may impact psychotherapy. Emphasis is placed on identifying Latino demographics, discussing culturally informed modifications in therapeutic technique, and reviewing clinical case material in English and/or Spanish.

13. Clients Living with Chronic Illness Seminar – This summer semester bi-weekly seminar focuses on key considerations for effective therapeutic work and case conceptualization when practicing therapy with individuals living with chronic health conditions and/or invisible disease. The seminar consists of case presentations as well as group discussion.

14. Training in Clinical Hypnosis – Interns have an option to receive supervision by a staff psychologist in the use of clinical hypnosis provided they attend an American Society of Clinical Hypnosis (ASCH)-approved basic workshop. (Conference funds are available for this and other training opportunities.)
There are a number of other training opportunities available to interns:

a. The Counseling Center administers the Sexual Assault Resource Team (S.A.R.T.), a group of peer advocates who respond to sexual assaults. Interns are given the opportunity to attend the training and processing sessions for S.A.R.T.

b. Grand Rounds -- Interns have some opportunity to attend the Department of Psychiatry Grand Rounds held at the Medical Campus. Each meeting typically involves a presentation of relevant professional and clinical issues in mental health.

c. The Counseling Center has close ties to the Psychology Department at the University of Miami, and interns have the opportunity to attend colloquia offered in that department.

d. South Florida often has nationally known figures offering workshops and some funds are provided for interns to attend workshops of special interest to them.

e. The Counseling Center's Affiliate Training Staff is available for individual consultations and discussions in their areas of expertise on an as needed basis.

f. The Counseling Center staff has instituted a Distinguished Speaker Series in which nationally regarded experts in specific domains of mental health offer day long workshops which the interns attend.

g. The Counseling Center staff is aware that often the most significant professional and personal growth occurs through the exchange of ideas with one’s peers. Interns are encouraged to interact among themselves.

The above chart is included as a general estimate of the activity hours per week. Please note that actual activity hours may vary depending upon the time of the academic year and the nature of the intern’s assignments. For example, extra intakes might be added to an intern’s schedule if his or her caseload was considerably lower than expected. Furthermore, time available for research expands significantly during periods of low clinical demands such as winter break and the summer.
Diversity and Training

Training and experience in working with individuals from diverse cultural backgrounds and lifestyles is a critical feature of the General Practitioner Training Model, and one that is greatly valued at the University of Miami Counseling Center. Cultural and lifestyle diversity is quite apparent among the clients seeking treatment at the Counseling Center. In fact, The Princeton Review in 2014 praised the University of Miami for being ranked by the guidebook as No. 3 in Race/Class Interaction. Recently, Campus Pride gave health and counseling at the University of Miami its highest rating in a national assessment program. The University of Miami prides itself upon being a "global university" with 15% of the undergraduates being classified as international students. Furthermore, 49% described themselves to be members of a minority group (Hispanic students - 25%; Black students - 9%; Asian students - 12%; Multiracial - 3%). There is also an Office of Disability Services on the UM Campus that frequently refers students to the Counseling Center for clinical services. These disabilities range from extreme physical limitations to Adult Attention Deficit Disorder. In addition, the University of Miami has an active LGBTQ community on campus, and consequently interns are exposed to the special conflicts experienced by LGBTQ individuals. Finally, it may be noted that in addition to a diverse training staff, the Psychotherapy Process Seminar having a multicultural focus, the Working with Latino Populations in Therapy Seminar and the multicultural/diversity features of the Clinical and Professional Topics Seminar, all provide a systemic context for exploring diversity. Supervision is available in Spanish, Portuguese and Creole.

External Rotation

The Counseling Center may arrange for the interns to spend up to 200 hours, usually during the summer semester, at a clinical placement outside the Counseling Center. The external rotation can provide the interns with a broader training experience by exposing them to clinical populations and settings not available at the Counseling Center. The specific placement is made on the basis of the intern's interests and training needs. Although this feature is viewed as an elective and supplemental experience, interns are strongly encouraged to take advantage of this opportunity. While there is no guarantee that a particular site will be available for placement, through the years, interns have been placed at the Miami Veterans Administration Hospital, The Oliver-Pyatt Center for Treatment of Eating Disorders, El Centro Center for Health Disparities Research and the Supporting Teens' Academic Needs Daily (STAND) program.

Affiliate Training Staff

The Counseling Center has invited a number of clinical practitioners in South Florida who have a high level of expertise in specialty areas to participate on a voluntary basis in the Internship Program as Affiliate Training Staff. They have indicated their willingness to be available to the interns for consultations and seminars in their area of expertise. This enriches the interns' experience by providing them with knowledge and perspectives from outside the academic community.
ELIGIBILITY AND APPLICATION PROCEDURES

Eligibility and Stipend

Successful completion of all required course work, practicum experiences and qualifying examinations in a doctoral level clinical/counseling psychology program accredited by the American Psychological Association is required by the beginning of the internship year. The internship year begins on August 10, 2021, and applications are due by November 6, 2020. The stipend for the 12-month internship is $30,000. Benefits include two weeks of vacation, all University holidays, two floating holidays and ten sick days. Interns have the option of purchasing group health insurance at a cost of $300 per year.

Since the program adheres to a General Practitioner Training Model, it is not necessary to have counseling center practicum experience to apply. Students from clinical, counseling or professional school programs are eligible. Interns are strongly encouraged to live within twenty miles from campus. A background check and drug screening are required post-match.

Application Procedures

The Counseling Center participates in the APPIC Internship Matching Program (Match No. 120111). Candidates for the internship program should provide the Counseling Center with the following materials by November 6, 2020:

a. A completed application form - The Counseling Center uses the APPIC Application for Psychology Internship (AAPI) form which may be accessed at http://appic.org/ and clicking on “AAPI Online.”

b. Curriculum vitae

c. Cover letter

d. Official transcript of all graduate work

e. At least three letters of recommendation (APPIC Standardized Reference Form)

Questions about the internship program should be directed to:

Interview Process

Our interview notification deadline is December 11, 2020. Applicants selected for interviews are typically notified by phone. Those not offered an interview are informed by e-mail. Due to the Covid-19 pandemic, all interviews will be conducted via Zoom. The interviews usually include half-hour individual, unstructured, separate meetings with the Training Director, one or two professional staff members and an intern. Interviews are typically scheduled from late December through mid January.

The Counseling Center is a member of the American Association of Psychology Postdoctoral and Internship Centers (APPIC). This internship site agrees to abide by the APPIC policy that no person at this training facility will solicit, accept or use any rank-related information from any intern applicant.

PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Patricia Arena, Ph.D.
Clinical Psychologist
University of Miami

Dr. Patricia Arena is originally from Brazil and completed her undergraduate training at the University of Miami. She received her Ph.D. from the University of Miami Adult Clinical Psychology doctoral program in 2002 and completed her internship at the University of Miami/Jackson Memorial Hospital. Dr. Arena also completed a post-doctoral fellowship in neuropsychology at the University of Miami Department of Neurology. She worked for nine years at Cherokee Health Systems, a community health center in Tennessee with a focus on integrated care and provision of care for the underserved, where she developed her interest in mood disorders, substance abuse, and severe psychopathology. Dr. Arena is fluent in Spanish and Portuguese and also has an interest in working with cultural diversity.

Kisha Bazelaïs, Ph.D.
Counseling Psychologist
Boston College

Dr. Bazelaïs completed her undergraduate degree in psychology at Franklin and Marshall College, and later earned her Ed.M. and MA in Psychological Counseling at Teachers College, Columbia University. She received her Ph.D. in Counseling Psychology at Boston College in 2011. After completing her internship at the University of Miami Counseling Center, Dr. Bazelaïs completed a two-year research postdoctoral fellowship at the Weill Cornell Medical College Institute of Geriatric Psychiatry where she conducted research on bio-psychosocial factors contributing to service inequities in mental health care among older adults. She also has experience in delivering community-based psychosocial interventions, and the implementation of evidence-based interventions with non-traditional populations. Her areas of interests include racial and ethnic identity development, examining risk and resilience factors, trauma histories, bereavement issues, psychological assessment, and working with individuals from culturally diverse backgrounds. Dr. Bazelaïs is fluent in French Creole. She is currently the Research Coordinator for the Counseling Center.

Audrey Cleary, Ph.D.
Clinical Psychologist
University of Arizona

Dr. Cleary earned her B.A. from the University of Virginia, her M.S. in Psychology from Villanova University, and her Ph.D. in Clinical Psychology from the University of Arizona. After completing her predoctoral internship at the University of Miami Counseling Center, she continued her training at the Counseling Center as a postdoctoral fellow. While at the University of Arizona, Dr. Cleary’s research focused on observed self-regulation among adolescent substance users. Her prior clinical experience included intervention and assessment of students at Counseling and Psychological Services at the University of Arizona. Dr. Cleary’s clinical interests include interpersonal and romantic relationship issues, family of origin concerns, mood management, identity development, and clinical hypnosis. She currently coordinates the Sexual Assault Resource Team.
Amy Crandall, Ph.D.
Counseling Psychologist
